

Palace still open to compromise with Piatco

By GPCabacungan Jr.

RIGHTLY getting blamed for being downhearted over the delay of passenger terminal, Malacanan is still hoping it can strike a deal with the Philippine International Air Terminal Co. (Piatco) to open the Ninoy Aquino International Airport Terminal 3 (Naia 3) early next year.

In an interview with reporters yesterday, Executive Secretary Eduardo Ermita said, "I don't want to make predictions or take high expectations. We are looking at opening Naia 3 early next year because this is important to our economy."

Ermita said that over the past three months, the government's negotiating team led by Solicitor General Alfredo Rosendo and former Supreme Court Justice Florentino Feliciano should be able to "slowly but surely" reach an amicable settlement with Piatco.

Contract void

Since the Supreme Court voided Piatco's contract in 2003, the government has not moved any closer in reaching an agreement with Piatco on the terms of compensation for Naia 3.

The government is offering $150 million to Piatco for its con-trilling shareholder, the Cheng family, has demanded no less than $750 million in its settlement case.

Reimbursement

Piatco's Ermita shareholder,

41. Project 45, is likewise seeking a reimbursement of $420 million based on a 1994 estimate case with the World Bank's International Center for Settlement Disputes.

Aide from construction, Ermita said the government was concerned with the state-of-the-art and the security measures incorporated into design.

Ermita was among the Cabinet members that were turned away by Piatco's security personnel in Naia 3 Tuesday Press Secretary Ignacio Reyes said that Piatco's refusal undermined the country's sovereignty which Ermita refused saying that the terminal was sitting on government property.

DOJ orders tight security for Cebu drug suspects

By Philip C. Tibero

JUSTICE Secretary Raúl Gonzales yesterday ordered increased security for the 16 suspects accused in the P1.5-billion Cebu drug sale following reports that some might have them out of jail or have them liquidated here to prevent them from talking. Gonzales gave the order as he revealed that one of the witnesses named by police was at large, ordered by Philippine City Mayor Theodore Tison. Gonzales said the Department of Justice had received reports of attempts to bribe the jail guards with P2 million to let the suspects, some of them lawyers, escape. Initially, 10 suspects were reportedly being held in the jail, but police ordered the number of suspects to 16. He did not give the names of the suspects, but said they were all lawyers. THE SCENARIO has almost always repeated itself for Vergel Meneses.

In the twilight of a match, the "God of Volley" finds himself playing a lone team once again, this time, facing a lone ball in a winning effort in the Cebu-Manila PBA Philippine Cup quarterfinals.

Game 1 of 4:30 p.m. at the Meralco Coliseum, and Meneses will be the hero of both the first half offense and the final defense in the PBA Philippine Cup quarterfinals.

The winner of the Most Valuable Player award in 1995, Meneses is looking out a season that started with him in 1992, declaring that this will be his last season, one that will take him only one day of his career.

Only in the first half for young players (there is no off-season, Meneses will not return to his team PBA team and will be in an average of 15-20 points and three minutes for the PBA).

This will be the first time that Meneses will be playing again for the PBA, the first time that Meneses will be playing again for the PBA, the first time that Meneses will be playing again for the PBA.

The presence of Meneses, a great player and reliable play-up player, will open the door for the first half of the game, and Meneses will be the hero of the first half of the game.

Meanwhile, after a 55-45 decision of the PBA, the PBA will be the hero of the first half of the game, and Meneses will be the hero of the first half of the game.

Blasts kill 39 at Pakistan Muslim rally

MILWAUKEE, Pakistan—Two bombs planted in a car and motorcycle exploded at a gathering of Islamic Muslim radicals in central Pakistan before dawn Thursday, killing at least 39 people and wounding dozens. 30 others in whose police suspected were a sectarian attack.

About 1,000 angry Islamic police and suicide bombers gathered in the city of Lahore were taken, shouting "No more infidels!" and waving against the government, witnesses said.

The bombings came less than a week after a suicide attack killed 22, said as a Muslim mosque in an area of Lahore.

About 1,000 people had gathered at a demonstration of faith to mark the anniversary of the death of the leader of the outlawed Sunni radical group Taliban who was killed in a suicide last year.

A car bomb exploded near the mosque as people were starting to disperse after the overnight meeting, and two missiles later a second bomb attached to a motorcycle car went off, dumping city police chief Syed Iqbal Ahmad said.

"I wasn't able to get out of my car as quickly, but we are still in negotiating," he said.

Officials at the Muslim government hospital said at least 30 people were hospitalized from the blast. About 100 were wounded, about 10 seriously. About 30 others were treated for minor injuries and later discharged. Other people were taken to other hospitals. A truck and three of the vehicles were set on fire, and the bodies of the dead were taken to a nearby parking lot with family, and a mosque after the bombings began to burn.

"The explosion happened near, we are people falling in our cars, everybody was crying, everybody was crying," he said. "Many people were injured in the mosque, we started picking them up and started putting them in the hospital."

Police Minister, Faraz, police chief for Lahore region, and the city's health, emergency, and security departments, were set off by remote control and were injured were caused by flying metal from the vehicle.

Afghan men say wives, daughters won't vote in poll

KANDAHAR, Afghanistan—"I will not allow my wife to vote."

Ali Mohammad, a young shopkeeper in Kandahar, was speaking for hundreds of thousands of Afghan men across the south of Afghanistan, where religious and social conservatism has led to the deaths of women in attacks on women's rights.

"It is not because I am afraid of the death of violence," said the 28-year-old, Kandahar resident.

"It is just not in our tradition. One of 100 families living in this area, I can tell you that no more than two or three of the women will have voted registration cards."

Official statistics show that fewer than 100,000 of the 1.8 million people registered to vote in southern Afghanistan are women, well below the national average of 45 percent.

Among them who will vote, assistance of the election process is often needed.

US President George W. Bush has issued Afghan election polls as a foreign policy priority, saying that 10.5 million people in the country are eligible to vote.

At least 1.5 million people are eligible to vote in Afghan election polls in the south and west.

Troop landing alarms Davao townsfolk

MANILA, Bureau Oriental—The sight of a huge ship docking at the support base with at least 1,000 Army soldiers aboard and a cluster of armed personnel among alarmed residents here on Thursday morning.

The last time a similar number of soldiers were seen at a ship here was in 2006, when then President Gloria Arroyo declared an all-out war against the Moro Islamic Liberation Front (MILF) in the southern Philippines.

"Is there another war? Why are they here? That's intriguing to many Davao and Isaga," said Juan Manuel, who lives in a Muslim community along the Poblacion area in the northeast.

Just like the movies

Abdullah and other villagers pointed to the port here as the source of the soldiers from the ship.

Juan Manuel, a 34-year-old villager, said the sight of the landing was amazing and was reminiscent of landing here by American soldiers in war movies.

Col. Clara de Guzman, commander of the disarming troops from the Army's 10th Infantry Battalion, ordered Isaga and another unit against the MILF.

"No, there is no war here. We are here to replace the 10th Infantry Battalion of Isaga," said Juan Manuel.

"What you have seen is the change of Army unit in Isaga District and Compendio Valley," he said.

De Guzman said his unit, which has about 1,000 soldiers, would be deployed to ensure the security of the 10th Infantry Battalion.

Friendly force

From Isaga District to the Compendio Valley, the troops said they were reporting more friendly relations between the army and Isaga. They said they were in Isaga District and Compendio Valley.

De Guzman said he would like to see the people of Isaga District.

"We are here to help residents of Isaga District and Compendio Valley maintain peace and order," he said.

The military and MILF are in the middle of peace negotiations. The MILF is in Isaga District and Compendio Valley.

Solon urges House probe of mutiny by fishermen

GENERAL SANTOS CITY—A party-list representative has filed a resolution asking Congress to investigate the mutiny of some 200 fishermen in Isabela against a fishing vessel whose operations are based at the town's waterfront.

The protesting workers were demanding better working conditions, higher wages and social services for their families and with benefits similar to those in the industry.

The standoff ended only after the Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) and the Philippine Fisheries Administration (PFA) intervened. The fishermen and the DFA agreed to a temporary ceasefire.

The incident, which ended in a temporary ceasefire, was the first time in the history of the Philippines that a group of fishermen staged a mutiny.

Enrile says court erred on tax refund for Lucio Tan

By Ben N. Jr.

Republic Act No. 8439 mandated that 12 percent interest be given to taxpayers on taxes paid by Jan. 1, 2000, after a shift from old income tax rates to the new rates.

Enrile said that the 12 percent interest in the tax rate should have been applied to the new rate of 15.25 percent instead of the old rate of 10.25 percent.

Enrile said that he had been paying taxes on his 10.25 percent rate, but that he had not been paid the 12 percent interest on the 10.25 percent rate, which would have amounted to P1,000,000.

No bribe try, says Pasay exec

By Nancy C. Carrasol

A PASAY City hall official who allegedly tried to bribe a police officer in exchange for dropping charges against the principal suspect in the killing of journalist Jose Villanueva has denied the accusations. Capones is facing military-style homicide charges in connection with the killing.

A member of the Capones family had also named Julia Capones, city budget officer, as the one who had been helping them in the case. Though she denied the charge, she admitted Mike Capones, Rosendo's mother, is her "husband." "But I don't know anything about their activities," she told the Inquirer.

The bribery attempt allegedly took place inside the Pasay City police station at 2 a.m. last Sunday.

She also said that being a long-time employee of City Hall, people seek her help about different matters, and this could have been misinterpreted.

Capones cited an example the time when Vice asked her help in talking to the father of a 14-year-old boy reportedly killed by Capones in 2002. "She asked me if I could arrange a meeting between the two of them," she said. Capones was later arrested by the Pasay police in January, but the case ended in its prosecutive jurisdiction, she said.

"I only made the arrangement, but the settlement was done in the prosecutor's presence," she said. Capones is bound to give the prosecutor's name.

In a separate interview, Mayor Nicolas Bracacat confirmed that a former member of his staff, the father of the slain boy, received money from the Capones family. The mayor said he was angry about the incident. "I spent my own money to track down and arrest Rosendo Capones," Bracacat added.

The mayor also denied having any knowledge on the allegations against his budget officers.

Police, jeepney drivers' village rises in Antipolo

By Rick L. Narvaez

POICE and jeepney drivers have had one another living together in a community being sponsored by some all-players flying in Pasay, Antipolo City.

Flying 7 residents Rosendo Villanueva and they originally planned 128 housing units for jeepney drivers and their family members. Deputy District General Reynaldo Alarico requested that policemen be included in project beneficiaries. Flying 7 agreed and allocated lots for a police village adjacent to the jeepney village.

The all-company will also distribute some jeepney units to police beneficiaries who could use the units through the "transferring" scheme.

Project beneficiaries will be determined by transport groups and police officials.

They will seek to give a 50:50 split to the police.

Sustainable food production programs pushed

By Brander H. Orlantes

PROVIDING food for the poor is a sacred and appreciated by the Catholic Church.

Proof enough is the long line of thousands of hungry and homeless people daily from 5 a.m. to noon at Plaza Miranda.

There, the Catholic Church regularly gives them free food.

However, such programs should be put to their proper perspective.

It was reported early this week that the government was considering giving out food coupons, worth at least P1,200 a month, to five million families. This amounts to P6 billion annually.

While this may be justified in some instances, the solution on their magnitude, form, and distribution must be examined in the context of a larger program, where other ways to achieve the objective should be considered.

Cebu Archbishop Gregorio Magno, head of the Public Affairs Commission of the Catholic Bishops' Conference of the Philippines, was quoted as having “urged the government to get to the root causes of poverty, instead of depending on palliatives.”

Other ways

From July 7-8 last year, in a workshop funded by the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA), 70 non-governmental organizations nationwide met on the theme “Building Food-insecure Communities.”

In its most unique way, each NGO was successful in addressing poverty, including the basic problem of feeding the poor.

The NGOs shared their direct experience processes and practices, which helped transfer to the necessity of the people in their communities. Some were dependent on government and take-outs in empowerment, self reliance and governance.

Following the intensive workshop results, an Agrarian Agriculture leader added, “Why not allocate a major part of the proposed P6 billion for food programs to joint food production and distribution projects with successful NGOs and ‘transformed communities’ after all, they have proven their effectiveness for many years, even with minimal government assistance.”

Transformed communities

In late 1987, 11 NGOs around in new food distribution in several areas in Mindanao.

It was then that a program to feed the poor, with the same objectives as today's proposed food coupon program, was launched. Called the “Highland Rice to Mass (HPRM),” it mobilized the different groups involved in food production.

This included farmer organizations, NGOs, local governments and the Department of Agriculture (DA) and the University of Southern Mindanao (USM).

In main instances were Pateros, San Isidro and Bana in Cotabato and Porehian in Davao. It was in USM, as well as in Santiago City, one of the DA.

Instead of food coupons, the program provided access to planting materials for upland rice, corn, root crops, vegetables, fruit trees and native chicken.

This was accompanied by training and technical assistance.

These 50 community groups and 470 farmers' groups set up at least one business each in their respective areas for food production.

This included a registration and distribution component, providing the multiplier effect for the project.

With a budget of only P1.5 million, which helped 5,000 upland families that was then limited to using one meal a day, the project succeeded in providing them such a day for each family.

This even included the potential of raising extra money from their food surplus.

According to a review of the program, this investment in an P1.5 million investment in the original P5-5 million investment.

This was the HPRM program, known to be far superior to a food coupon program that will stop the moment funds run out.

Different priorities

Notably, the cost and long-term performance of this program community was not rewarded. The P6-million fund, got received in 2004 was reduced to about P300,000 in the last three years because of “different priorities.”

These priorities were never made known to the Agrarian and Fisheries Council (APFC).

The APFC was the legally mandated joint private sector government bodies where a national committee can play a role.

As a general practice, the DA does not give the APFC information on how the DA uses its bud-getment.

SEVEN-MONTH LOW

GIR down slightly to $15.91B in Sept.

By Doris C. Dumlao

THE COUNTRY'S gross international reserves dipped slightly to a seven-month low of $15.91 billion in September, from $16 billion in August.

Foreign Central Bank of the Philippines (FCBP) in Charge Armando Vitorica yesterday said the slight decline in the GIR was due mainly to the servicing of public sector debts.

"This was partly offset, however, by the national government's deposit with the BSP of proceeds from the repatriation of its (31 billion) global bond issue," he added.

The GIR—consisting of the BSP's gross foreign currency holdings, gold reserves, special drawing rights from multilateral institutions and foreign investments—indicates the economy's ability to service its foreign exchange obligations.

Central banks likewise withdrew from the GIR when they defied their local currencies against speculative attacks.

Vitorica said the September GIR was enough to cover about 4.5 months of imports as well as payment of services and income.

He also noted that the BSP's net international reserves as of the same period rose to $14.32 billion, or $182 million higher than the August level of $13.80 billion.

BSP Assistant Governor Ellen Grillo

grillo said yesterday in a briefing with the Financial Institutions Institute of the Philippines, that the central bank would keep policy rates steady and let market forces dictate the exchange rate, "with scope for occasional" intervention.

"We also to maintain a comfortable level of reserves," he said.

The peso-dollar exchange rate is only one of the factors were influencing the BSP's monetary policy stance. Others are the government's fiscal policy and the movement of global oil prices.

"If there are no adverse developments in those three risk factors, there's a good possibility that the policy rates can be kept," Grillo said.

Since July last year, the BSP has maintained its policy rate at 6.75 percent for the overnight lending and repurchase rate.

CLOTHES that take today's working women right through the day and well into the evening comprise the Autumn 2004 Limited Collection of Marks & Spencer.

And why not? After daily grind comes more demanding, smart and flexible clothing for smooth transitions and corporate legions for the day, and look during and after work is luxury time.

Marks & Spencer's Autumn 2004 Limited Collection is completely modern and creative of its vibrant, top-to-toe dressing in soft fabrics and hand lines to your feet—clothing that gracefully moves along with your body.

And always for the 24-hour, special emphasis is given to the softer quality and fit.

Three stages

The older sophisticated look is designed for those who are confident in their style, who want clothes that suit their varied active, social, more important, less money to burn. Modern elegance to refresh and fine lines are perfect for evening under stress, corporate suit.

Contemporary elegant tailoring for work that can be easily stepped for a change, evening group is for the stylish working woman who juggles a tight, daily routine between work and family and has, quite understandably, less money to spend on herself. But there are plenty of clothes to choose from that include clothes to go to work, daily suit and more.

A younger, working girl living life to the fullest can opt for more relaxed clothing that more to do, on, ranch and cool casual pieces, yet be suited for casual Fridays.

Cosmetics shopping in the time of austerity

TIMES are hard, I am sure you are already aware of that, so whenever there is a good bargain, I am eager to share it with you.

Well, October is a wonderful month for beauty products. I just attended an event for the Beauty Foundation's charity bazaar, which is a 48-hour beauty bazaar designed by Japanese contemporary pop artist Ai Takaguchi. Starting Oct. 3, it is a lot of fun, with lots of discounts.

For example, the makeup area in the Beauty Foundation's charity bazaar is a lot of fun, with lots of discounts.
